LE ROY

Following the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes, October 22, 1685, about a third of a million citizens of France emigrated from the fatherland, seeking asylum in other countries, where less onerous laws and regulations prevailed, bearing upon religious customs and practices. These emigrants represented all of the liberal professions. What was France's loss was decidedly the gain of the surrounding countries. The hegin of the Huguenots had been so precipitate that few of the emigres were able, immediately, to get far from France, most of them settling in England, Holland, Switzerland and Brandenburg. Eventfully, however, many of these original emigrants not finding conditions entirely to their liking in the communities in which they had respectively located, made a further change of base, this time crossing the seas, where they found a veritable haven of rest in America.

The Le Roy family had their home in the seaport of La Rochelle, "which had been the stronghold of the Huguenot faith and fighting for nearly seventy years, and which, though dismantled and spoiled of its ancient honors, was still the home of many of their wealthiest and most influential families." The Le Roy motto, "All my hope in God," seems appropriate, for the family clung to the Protestant faith.

Here, in ^{La}New Rochelle, the Le Roy family had flourished for several generations. The first of the name of whom we have knowledge was David Le Roy, baptized at La Rochelle, July 10, 1585, and his son, Gaspard Le Roy, born September 16, 1617. The latter's son, Pierre Le Roy, born La Rochelle, September 29, 1655 - and who was the father of Daniel Le Roy, first of this family in America - married, April 1678, Marie Van Zevenhoven, baptized April 27, 1658. It was this Pierre Le Roy who emigrated to Holland. Pierre had four children, three daughters: Marianne, Henriette and Madelaine; and one son: Daniel.

Daniel Le Roy, the first of this family in America, was born at La Rochelle, France, August 26, 1691, and died in New York, April 18, 1772. He came to New York about 1750, with his wife and son Jacob. A daughter, Maria Ann Le Roy, born August 16, 1723, died April 10, 1786, married, July 15, 1753, J. H. Chabanel, born 1714, died July 10, 1777; remained in Europe; had no issue.

Daniel Le Roy, married, November 11, 1722, Ingenatia Van den Bergh, of Rotterdam, Holland, who died January 20, 1764.

VAN DEN BERGH

This is an old and distinguished family of Holland. The emigrant ancestor of this family to America was Gysbert Cornelissen Van Wesep, called also Gysbert Van den Bergh.

The latter arrived in the Colony of Rensselaerwyck in 1645, and lived on a farm called "High Bergh." He married Lysbet, daughter of Claes Cornelis Serpes Van Voorhoudt, and had four children, from whom are descended the family of this name.

Of the same family as the above Gysbert Van den Bergh, was Ingenatia Van den Bergh of Rotterdam, Holland, of the branch which remained in Holland. This Ingenatia Van den Bergh married as previously mentioned - Daniel Le Roy, and came with him to New York about 1750.

Jacob Le Roy, son of the above Daniel and Ingenatia (Van den Bergh) Le Roy, born Rotterdam, Holland, February 20, 1727, died January 3, 1793. He made a confession of faith, January 22, 1746 and became a member of the Walloon Church of Amsterdam. He came to New York with his father, and there became a leading merchant. He associated himself first with his brother-in-law, Captain Anthony Rutgers, and secondly as Jacob Le Roy & Sons. He was a man of wealth and a prominent citizen, occupying positions of trust. Was foreman of the first Grand Jury assembled in New York State; and Alderman, and one of the members of the City Hall Building Committee.

Jacob Le Roy married (1) December 13, 1753, Cornelia Rutgers, born October 31, 1736, died July 11, 1765; married (2) May 31, 1766, Catherine Rutgers, born June 2, 1738, sister of his first wife; both daughters of Harman Rutgers, III; and sisters of Captain Anthony Rutgers.

RUTGERS

Two brothers, Rutgers and Teunis Jacobsen Van Schvenderwoerd or Van Woert, were the ancestors of two distinct branches of this noted Holland family.

Teunis's descendants took the name of Van Schvenderwoerd, or simply, Van Woert, and settled chiefly in Albany County, New York.

Rutgers Jacobsen Van Schvenderwoerd's descendants took the name of RUTGERS and settled in New York and vicinity.

The latter, who is the emigrant ancestor of this particular family, set sail from Texel, Holland, October 1, 1636, on board the craft Rensselaerswyck, for the New Netherlands. Schvenderwoerd is a village not far from Leerdam, and Jacobse or Jacobsen means that Rutgers was the son of Jacob.

Rutgers landed early in 1637 at Fort Orange, because of his friend and Patroon, Kiliaen Van Rensselaer, of Fort Orange (Albany). Rutgers was a colorful figure; was captain of a sloop which he owned and traded in many foreign lands, becoming very wealthy. In addition, he dealt in real estate and also started a brewery in Albany. At that time, the business of brewing was considered as honorable and dignified an industry as any other carried on.

In 1660, Rutgers was appointed magistrate, which office he held until his death. He was prominent in church affairs, and laid the cornerstone of the new church in Albany in 1656. He died in 1665.

He married, June 3, 1646, Tryntje Jansse Van Breesteede, and had two daughters, Margaret and Engel; and one son, Harman.

Harman Rutgers, the only son, was successful in the business of real estate, trading with the Indians and in carrying on the brewery. He served in the wars with the Indians. In 1693, he removed to New York, and was living as late as 1720. He married Catharine de Hooges, daughter of Anthony de Hooges, Provincial Secretary of Rensselaerwyck. They had two sons, Anthony and Harman, Jr.; and a daughter Elsie, who married David Schuyler, once Mayor of Albany.

Harman Rutgers, Jr., just mentioned, went into business with his father. He married Catharine Meyer, and had two sons and three daughters.

Harman Rutgers, III, a son of the above Harman Rutgers, Jr., married and had three sons and three daughters. Of the daughters, two, Cornelia and Catherine Rutgers, married Jacob Le Roy. Of the three sons, the eldest, Robert Rutgers, married Elizabeth Beekman; Harman Rutgers, IV, died unmarried. The other son was Captain Anthony Rutgers - of whom below.

Captain Anthony Rutgers, just mentioned, was Captain of a Privateer. Returned to civil life and was Assistant Alderman. Shortly afterwards he opened a rope-walk with Jacob Le Roy, his brother-in-law, and was the father of that business in the Colonies. His two sisters - as previously mentioned - married Jacob Le Roy.

Jacob Le Roy had seven children by his first marriage to Cornelia Rutgers, and two children by his second marriage to Catharine Rutgers - as follows:

Issue, first marriage, seven children:

- (1) Elizabeth Le Roy, born September 6, 1754, died August 11, 1755.
- (2) Daniel Le Roy, born December 12, 1755, died October 20, 1756.
- (3) Ingenatia Le Roy, born November 28, 1756, died October 4, 1757.
- (4) Herman Le Roy - of whom below.

(5) Maria Ann Le Roy, born January 23, 1759, died April 7, 1795; married May 11, 1777, John Livingston, born March 4, 1749, died October 22, 1822; Fourth and last Lord of the Manor. (See LIVINGSTON FAMILY SKETCH for full details).

(6) Daniel Le Roy, born November 4, 1761, died September 19, 1791, unmarried.

(7) Jacob Le Roy, born November 19, 1763, died February 13, 1815; married, January 26, 1792, Martha Banyer, born January 19, 1769, died October 10, 1829. No male issue.

Issue second marriage, two children:

(1) Elizabeth Le Roy, born March 17, 1767, died August 12, 1820; married, February 5, 1793, Julian McEvers.

(2) Robert Le Roy, born February 6, 1768, died February 7, 1845; married, February 9, 1794, Catherine Cuyler, born February 5, 1771, died March 1, 1869. Their son was:

1. Jacob Rutgers Le Roy, born September 8, 1795, died 1867; married Helen Otis, sister of Charlotte Downes Otis (who married Jacob Le Roy - see further), and daughter of Thomas and Charlotte (Downes) Otis of Boston. Their son was:

1. Robert Le Roy, born about 1823, died 1865; married Amelia Lewis. There two sons were:

1. Jacob Rutgers Le Roy, born September 29, 1852, died 1926, unmarried.

2. Herman Le Roy who changed his name to Herman Le Roy Lewis, and died unmarried.

Herman Le Roy, fourth of the seven children of Jacob Le Roy by his first marriage to Cornelia Rutgers, born January 16, 1758, died March 13, 1841. In 1788, he, together with his brother-in-law, William Bayard, founded the firm of Le Roy, Bayard & Co., which afterwards became Le Roy, Bayard & McEvers, and finally, as it started, Le Roy, Bayard & Co. It soon became the largest commercial house in New York, sending its ships and trading with all parts of the world. Many of the leading merchants of later days received their business education with this firm.

Herman Le Roy was Consul General for the State of Holland in 1786, and he and William Bayard represented the Holland Land Co., which owned some three million acres in Western New York in 1792. He and William Bayard themselves owned about 300,000 acres. Herman Le Roy founded the town of Le Roy in 1813, in Genesee County, New York, which was incorporated in 1834. He was a director at Philadelphia of the Bank of the United States in 1793, and president of the Bank of New York in 1802; warden of the Grace Church of New York in 1809.

Herman Le Roy married, October 19, 1786, Hannah Cornell, born about 1760, died December 25, 1818.

CORNELL

This family is of English origin, and came to England in the Norman period from Brittany in France. Like most Anglo-Norman families, there was but little uniformity in the spelling of the name for many generations. Among the variants found in the records are Cornell, Cornhill, Cornil, Cornwall, Cornwell, Cornewall, and Cornewell.

Some of the English branches still write the name Cornewell. Burke's Landed Gentry of Great Britain, gives two branches, the senior one writing the name Cornewall, and the other Cornwall. Burke's Peerage and Baronetage adds a third branch, a family of Baronets in Hereford, who retain the name Cornewall, and Burke traces the lineage of the whole family through the Barons of Burford to Richard de Cornewall, son of Richard Earl of Cornewall, second son of King John, younger brother of Richard Coeur de Lion.

The tradition prevails in England that all the Cornwalls or Cornwells are descended from the Earls of Cornewall.

According to the records of the Parish of Ardley or Yardley in Heertfordshire, Thomas Cornewall (son of John Cornewall) owned the Manor of Fairsted in Essex, and died May 1, 1550. This Thomas and his wife Jane had a son Hunphrey Cornwall, who married Mary Manoke and had issue: Thomas, George, Francis, Jane, Margaret, Elizabeth and Frances.

Thomas Cornell, of Rhode Island, emigrant ancestor of this family, was - as is generally accepted - the grandson of the above Humphrey Cornwall.

When the founder of the New York branch came to Long Island, he spelled his name Cornhill, and thereafter Cornwell, and it was not until the 18th century that the major part of the Long Island family adopted Cornell as their patronymic.

The first of this family to arrive in America was William Cornell, who came to New England in 1635, settled in Middletown, Conn., where he had numerous descendants - the Cornells of Connecticut. His cousin, Thomas Cornell, settled in Gravesand, Long Island, now a part of Brooklyn, where he died in 1650, leaving only daughters.

The other Thomas Cornell, born about 1595 in Essex County, England, came to America in 1638, with his wife and children. He is first found at Boston in 1638; removed to Portsmouth, R. I., in 1640, where he was admitted a freeman that year; in 1641 was made constable, and in 1642 ensign. At that time he spelled his name Cornill.

Hearing of the fertility of the country about New Amsterdam, he went in 1642 with Captain Throckmorton and a number of adventurers to Throgg's Neck and from there to New Amsterdam. In 1643 Governor Kieft granted to them a tract of land in what is now the town of Westchester. Because of the many Indian attacks, many of the settlers, including Thomas Cornell, returned to Portsmouth, R. I., and secured a grant of land there in 1644. This may be considered the original homestead of the Cornell family.

After restoration of peace in New Netherland, Thomas Cornell returned to the Dutch Colony. A tract of land was granted to him by Governor Kieft in 1646, in Westchester County, and even now is known as Cornell's Neck. After several years there, he was again driven out from his property by the Indians and returned to his homestead in Portsmouth, where he died about 1655.

Thomas Cornell married Rebecca Briggs, born 1600, died February 8, 1673. They had nine children as follows: Thomas, Sarah, Rebecca, Ann, Richard, John, Joshua, Elizabeth, and Samuel.

Two of the above sons removed from Rhode Island to Long Island. Richard (of whom below) settled in Flushing, and John (1637) in Cove Neck.

Richard Cornell, just mentioned, born about 1625 in England, settled at Flushing, Long Island, probably before 1656, in which year his name appears in the records. In 1665, he was delegate from Flushing to the Hempstead convention that framed the "Dukes Laws," the first code made in the colony. He was Justice of the Peace in 1666; patentee of Flushing from Governor Nicholls with 17 others that same year; enrolled in the militia 1670, and appointed to lay out roads at Newtown, and adjusted the boundary between Bushwick and Newtown. He bought many acres of land in Hempstead and Flushing. Removed to Rockaway where he had purchased land and lived there until his death. His will was dated November 7, 1693, and approved October 30, 1694.

Richard Cornell married about 1655 Elizabeth , and had eight children as follows: Richard, Sarah, Elizabeth, William, Jacob, Thomas, Col. John, and Mary.

Thomas Cornell, the sixth of the above eight children, born about 1675, died 1719; lived at Jamaica, Long Island. He married, (1) ; married (2) December 10, 1712, Charity Hicks. He had eight children as follows: Thomas, Samuel, John, Richard, Charles, Elizabeth, Letitia, and Charity.

Samuel Cornell, the second of the above eight children, born about 1700; lived at Flushing, Long Island; was colonel of militia, supervisor, etc. He married (1) Hannah Doughty, daughter of Charles and Elizabeth (Jackson) Doughty; married (2) Elizabeth Doughty, sister of his first wife; married (3) 1768, Susannah Willett. He had seven children as follows: Hannah, Hon. Samuel, Sarah, Mary, Charles, Robert and Ann.

Hon. Samuel Cornell, the second of the above seven children, born April 17, 1731, died June 1, 1781. He moved to New Berne, North Carolina, where he was a merchant; acquired great wealth and was one of His Majesty's Council. Removed later to New York. Was a Loyalist and his property was therefore confiscated. He married Susannah Mabson, daughter of Arthur Mabson of North Carolina, who died February 10, 1778.

By the above marriage, there were five children: Elizabeth (who married William Bayard, Jr.), Sarah (who married Matthew Clarkson), Mary (who married Isaac Richards), Susannah (who married Capt. Henry Chads), and Hannah, born about 1760, died December 25, 1818; who married, October 19, 1786, Herman Le Roy - as previously mentioned.

Herman and Hannah (Cornell) Le Roy, had twelve children as follows:

- (1) Cornelia Le Roy, born December 23, 1787, died April 6, 1860; married, April 29, 1809, William Edgar, who died August 29, 1823.
- (2) Samuel Cornell Le Roy, born December 23, 1788, died January 2, 1790.
- (3) Catherine Augusta Le Roy, married Thomas Newbold. (See below).
- (4) Herman Le Roy. (See further).
- (5) Susan Le Roy, married David S. Jones. (See further).
- (6) Jacob Le Roy. (See further).
- (7) William Henry Le Roy, born December 14, 1795, died July 28, 1888; married, November 27, 1819, Elizabeth Emmet, born December 4, 1794, died December 31, 1878; of that noted New York family.

They had five children, of whom only one married, namely, Jane Emmet Le Roy, who married Robert W. Edgar, and had three children, all of whom died unmarried.

- (8) Caroline Bayard Le Roy, born September 28, 1797, died February 26, 1882; married, December 12, 1829, Daniel Webster, born January 18, 1782, died October 24, 1852. No issue.
 - (9) Daniel Le Roy. (See further).
 - (10) Mary Le Roy, born November 3, 1800, died April 25, 1828; unmarried.
 - (11) Robert Le Roy, born May 12, 1802, died without issue.
 - (12) Edward Augustus Le Roy, born March 1, 1804, died January 16, 1865; married, December 28, 1828, Sarah L. Morris.

Catharine Augusta Le Roy, the third of the above twelve children of Herman and Hannah (Cornell) Le Roy, born May 19, 1790, died December 29, 1835, in Paris, France; married, January 15, 1812, Thomas Newbold, born Springfield Township, Burlington County, N. J., September 28, 1773, died in Philadelphia, Pa., December 30, 1815. He was the son of Caleb and Sarah (Haines) Newbold, and a descendant of Michael Newbold, who came from Yorkshire, England, to Burlington County, N. J., in 1680.

By the above marriage, there were three children: Herman Le Roy, Thomas Haines, and Hannah Cornell Newbold - all of whom below.

Herman Le Roy Newbold, born in Philadelphia, Pa., April 26, 1813, died September 27, 1854; married, June 3, 1837, Mary Edwards Ogden, born December 25, 1804, died January 7, 1853; the daughter of David and Rebecca (Edwards) Ogden. They had no issue.

Thomas Haines Newbold, born Pelham, N. Y., September 24, 1814, died New York City, March 21, 1859. He married, April 23, 1846, Mary Elizabeth Rhineland, born New York City, December 12, 1826, died at "Fern Tor," Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 4, 1897; the daughter of Frederick William and Mary Lucretia Lucy Ann (Stevens) Rhineland.

Issue, by the above marriage, 5 children:

He married, May 20, 1822, Charlotte Downes Otis, daughter of Hon. Thomas Otis of Boston.

O T I S

The name had been variously spelled: Oattis, Oatis, Ottys, Ottis, and Otis.

The first of this family to come to America, was John Otis (spelled his name Ottis), born at Barnstable, Devonshire, England, in 1581; came to Hingham, Mass., and drew home lots in the first division of lands in town in 1635. Took the Freeman's oath March 3, 1635-36. His place of residence at Hingham was Otis Hill, still so called. He was a prominent citizen of the town.

He married (1) Margaret _____, in England, who died at Hingham, 1653 or 1654. He then removed to Weymouth about 1663, and there married a second wife whose name is unknown. He died May 31, 1657.

He had 6 children: John, Richard, Margaret, Hannah, Ann and Alice.

John Otis, the eldest of these 6 children, born at Barnstable, Devonshire, England, in 1620, accompanied his parents to Massachusetts, and resided at Otis Hill, Hingham. He removed to Scituate, where he received a grant of land. In 1678, he went to Barnstable and settled on land called Otis Farm. He returned to Scituate and died there January 16, 1663.

He married, 1652, Mary Jacob, daughter of Nicholas Jacob, who came from England in 1633. They had 8 children: John, Mary, Hannah, Eliabeth, Stephen, James, Job and Joseph.

Captain Stephen Otis, the 5th of the above 8 children, born Hingham, Mass., 1661, died May 26, 1733. He was commander of the Militia of the Town. Married, 1685, Hannah Ensign of Scituate, daughter of John Ensign (one of the heroes who fell in the Rehoboth battle). They had 8 children: Ensign, John, Hannah, Mary, Isaac, Stephen, Joseph, and Joshua.

Isaac Otis, M. D., the 5th of the above 8 children, born 1699; was the first physician in Scituate, and began practice in 1719, when the town "voted him a settlement of 100 pounds to encourage him to remain in town." He died 1786. He married, 1718, Deborah Jacobs, daughter of Deacon David and Sarah (Cushing) Jacobs. They had 7 children: Isaac, Josiah, a second Josiah, William, Stephen, James, and a second James.

James Otis, M. D., the youngest of the above 7 children, born 1734; was the third physician of Scituate, and began practice about 1760. Was in the French War, and served as surgeon's mate at Crown Point in 1758. He married, October 3, 1761, Lucy Cushing, born 1736, daughter of Ezekiel Cushing of Falmouth, Maine. They had 7 children: Lucy, James, Hannah, Cushing, Elizabeth, Mary and Thomas.

Thomas Otis, the youngest of the above 7 children, born July 15, 1776. Was an importer of dry goods in Boston, of the firm of Otis & Holburn. When the firm dissolved about 1800, he established himself in New York City, under the firm name of Otis and Swan. He was very successful and retired, dying at New York, October 29, 1841.

Thomas Otis married Charlotte Downes of Boston, and they had three children: Thomas, who died young; Helen, who married Jacob Rutgers Le Roy - as previously mentioned; and Charlotte Downes, who married - as previously mentioned - Jacob Le Roy.

Jacob and Charlotte Downes (Otis) Le Roy, had ten children as follows:

- (1) Thomas Otis Le Roy, born July 9, 1823, married Caroline Clark. No male issue.

- (8) Juliet Edgar Le Roy, died in infancy.
- (9) Louisa Le Roy, born July 6, 1837, died young.
- (10) Mary Caroline Le Roy, married E. R. Goodridge. (See further).

Edward Augustus Le Roy, the 6th child mentioned above, born Le Roy, N. Y., January 14, 1833, was educated at Dr. Muhlenbergs private school. In 1853 he went abroad where he became private secretary to Hon. Robert McLane, U. S. Commissioner to China, Japan, etc., and afterwards Minister to France. He traveled with Mr. McLane in China, conferring with officials in regard to treaties and trade agreements with the United States which were not being lived up to, as there were several revolutions going on at that time. In their travels during these turbulent times they had many exciting and interesting experiences.

In 1854, Mr. Le Roy resigned and returned home, bringing with him to the President, the Treaty with Japan, and news with regard to the Annexation of the Hawaiian Islands. In 1856, he became partner in his brother's firm, Thomas Otis Le Roy & Co., and he was connected with this firm and its successor, Le Roy, Shot & Lead Co., until 1892, when he sold his interest to the National Lead Co., and retired.

Edward Augustus Le Roy married, April 10, 1856, Clementina Barnewell Pell, daughter of Archibald Morris Pell. (See PELL sketch). By this marriage there were 7 children as follows:
